

About the Mid-Champlain Valley Regional Conservation Partnership (RCP)

We are a collective of people from northern Addison County, Vermont, working together to support the communities of the Mid-Champlain Valley to preserve, restore and enhance natural systems through sustainable stewardship.

Our partnership supports the first intact east-west connective habitat south of Burlington that connects the Green Mountains to Lake Champlain. It includes a mix of agricultural land and natural habitat that encompasses the towns of Addison, Bristol, Ferrisburgh, Lincoln, Monkton, New Haven, Panton, Starksboro, Vergennes, Waltham and Weybridge.

Our goals are to provide educational opportunities, hands-on engagement/involvement, collaboration and support for those who are interested in stewarding the landscape, and learning about our region.

Sharing ideas within a wide knowledge base helps us address common questions and craft solutions to keep our ecosystems healthy and resilient.
